

Abstract:

A security system and method for a client device connected to a network by a broadband connection. The security system insures that the client machine has not been moved from its authorized location. A check is made to insure that the machine
5 is located at its assigned location. If this check finds that the client machine is not at its assigned location, the network connection is inhibited or terminated.